The Neet Conundrum

The suicide of S Anitha, a 17-year-old girl from Ariyalur district in Tamil Nadu, following her failure to get admission in medical course, is most unfortunate and could have been avoided. Anitha's suicide has come close on the heels of a Supreme Court order which directed the State Government to complete admissions to National Eligibility-cum Entrance Test (NEET) by September 4. Clearly, amid much uncertainty, the apex court's order had come as a much relief for the parents and students alike. But Anitha's suicide has once again rekindled debate over NEET. Following her suicide, major opposition political parties in Tamil Nadu took to the streets. This brought normal life to a standstill. Their argument is that had the admission to MBBS been held based on the marks scored in the Class XII examination, Anitha would have got into any of the leading medical colleges in the State. They argue that the syllabus of the State board examination is not compatible with NEET which is based on the CBSE syllabus and, hence, NEET should be cancelled. Tamil Nadu's disregard for a national entrance examination is the most unfortunate at a time when the need is all the more to provide for a level-playing field for students. The merits of NEET need no emphasis — it was introduced with an aim to curb corruption and ensure transparency in the admission procedure itself. Past attempts on the part of Tamil Nadu, to put a brave front against NEET, have only backfired. It's attempt to take the Ordinance route too failed after the Centre ruled that it was not in favour of giving "undue advantage" to one State. The reading on the wall was, in fact, made clear by the Centre last year, when it granted a one-time exemption to the entire country. Against this backdrop, it was the utmost duty for the State Government to make the changes in the school curriculum to ensure that the students are NEET-ready. But it failed to act.

Envisioning Reforms In Higher Education

The Ministry of Human Resource Development has announced to scrap University Grants Commission (UGC) and All India Council for Technical Education (AICTE) and replace it with a new body named the Higher Education Empowerment Regulation Agency (HEERA) to regulate both technical and non-technical institutions. HEERA will thus get rid of overlapping functions and jurisdictions of the UGC and the AICTE. It is also expected to curb irrelevant regulatory provisions and make higher education regulation more effective and result-oriented with greater synergy between the regulator and the institutions. The detailed blueprint of HEERA and its legislation is still being worked out.

In a rapidly globalising world with technology taking center-stage, the higher education sector for a country like India, needs to leverage its huge talent available in its populace to not only change but rather reform the practices on a continuous basis to become relevant in a global setting. The existing laws governing higher education in India needs to be reformed to address these requirements.

Currently, India has a regulatory framework that gives absolute freedom through its governing boards to the Indian Institutes of Technology (IIT) and the Indian Institutes of Management (IIM) to run higher education programmes while all universities, be it a Government or a non-Government/non-profit society (also referred to as private institutions) controlled, are under various regulations enforced by AICTE or the UGC.

It is time for the Government to streamline regulatory mechanisms in higher education with global setting in mind. It must be understood that Government institutions' contribution to nation-building must be supplemented by private or non-profit society controlled institutions.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Status & Changing Roles of Women in Indian Society (31)

In view of the increasing incidence of the rape incidents, it is absolutely necessary to review the rape law humanely and progressively as the existing law is not only partial but also outdated. The subject needs a comprehensive review and should include various types of assault, violence and torture, and with gender neutrality. Indian women are far too vulnerable to violent assaults. Sexual violence in villages, though little reported, keeps girls and women indoors after dark. The pity is that to change attitudes to rape so many young women have had to suffer and die. An act the police never prosecute and the public ignores. Women are routinely groped and harassed by men on buses and trains. The reason behind is the vulgar display by even top grade heroines in the form of 'item numbers' has become a must for any successful movie. All these adds to the frustration where the age of sexual maturity does not match with the permissible age for marriage. A piece of fool-proof legislation is needed to safeguard innocent victims. One should see that by giving a deterrent punishment to the rapist this evil of rape would not be solved. Once it is proved that the person is guilty of rape he should be hanged and the women for their self-defense should learn the art of Karate, Judo and if not they should keep a chilly powder in order to escape from the rapist. Before the dignity of more women is sacrificed, we need to have a real change for the better democracy, greater freedom, full transparency, strict law enforcement, and mandatory punishment for heinous crimes against women.

Asean: Sharing Values And Common Destiny

It was to commemorate 25 years of the establishment of India-Asean (Association of South East Asian Nations) relations on the 70th Independence Day that Bhopal witnessed the coming together of delegates from the 10 Asean nations for a youth summit. The cultural linkages between Southeast Asia and India date back to two millennia, with shared heritage and histories. The socio-cultural linkages between the two enable us to acquire a better understanding of the relations amongst the India-Asean nations.

Evidence of the earliest contacts between India and its Southeast Asia neighbours can be traced to the first century AD. Excavations of the Pyu settlements in present day Myanmar show evidence of the earliest Southeast Asian contacts with India, and one of the sites is called Beikthano (meaning the city of Vishnu). Indian influence is evident in Pyu architecture, coinage, statues of Hindu deities and the Buddha, and other early forms of epigraphy. Pyu coins have been unearthed from as far as the Mekong Delta, indicating that trade and culture followed the same route.

Besides the famed temples of Cambodia like Angkor Wat and Ta Prohm with distinct Indian connections and influences, another group of sites scattered through central Thailand called Dvaravati, associated with the Mon inhabitants, which flourished from the seventh century AD to the end of the first millennium, also show heavy influence of Indian culture, especially Buddhist influence, in addition to that of Vaishnav and Shaivite traditions. The Kingdoms of Cham, which were the southern neighbours of Vietnam, also demonstrated extensive influence of Indian culture, with the famous area of 'My Son' having a complex of temples dedicated to Shiva.

The Government of India is actively involved, along with its Asean partners, in its efforts to preserve, protect and restore many of these symbols and structures that represent the civilisational bonds between Asean and India. In his address at the inaugural session of the summit, Minister of State for External Affairs, Gen V K Singh, laid stress on continued efforts to build synergies between India and Asean member states based on the civilisational links and commonalities between India and Southeast Asia.

Commerce primarily took place via the seas with the ancient port of Tamralipti at the mouth of the Ganges being one of the earliest points of embarkation. From there, ships sailed across to the Malay Peninsula, either along the coast of Bengal and Myanmar or through the Bay of Bengal. Later routes diversified, for example, from Tamralipti in Odisha to Sri Lanka and the Nicobar Islands, which would then either go on through the Sunda Straits or the Straits of Malacca. Not only were the trade networks vast but importantly, commerce and exchange was a two-way process, with both Indians and Southeast Asians playing an active role in it.

Many centuries have passed since the first signs of the budding commercial relationship between India and Southeast Asia, and while the exchanges have waxed and waned over the centuries, trade between India and Southeast Asia remains an important aspect of our engagement in the 21st century, with Asean being India's fourth largest trading partner today.

When the world is on the edge due to the challenge of climate change, it becomes vital for nations to come together to understand its consequences and mitigate it with utmost priority. To understand the seriousness, Asean recognises the importance of creating synergy between the mutually-reinforcing Asean 2025 blueprints and the sustainable development goals (SDGs) within the framework of Asean-UN co-operation. Owing to its location and geo-strategic condition, Asean is one of the most vulnerable regions to the challenge of climate change. In recent past, several Asean countries are among the hardest hit by natural disasters such as drought, sea level rise, and typhoon. Indonesia and Thailand were hit by tsunami in 2004, earthquake happened in Myanmar in 2012. Philippines and Vietnam too suffered from Taiphon Haiyan in 2013. This takes on special significance considering Asia and the Pacific is home to half of the world's poor.

Due to location and geo-strategic condition, Asean is one of the most exposures to climate change vulnerability in the region. The SDGs is a shared goal at the multilateral level but also at the regional level and this initiative shows that Asean is at the forefront of the effort to achieve the mutually-reinforcing goals of the blueprints and the SDGs.

Cultural and intellectual exchanges and people-to-people contacts continue to be an important pillar of India-Asean relations today, and we aim to expand them through various initiatives, such as through the exchange of artists, students, journalists, farmers and parliamentarians, as well as a multiplicity of think-tank initiatives.

Ambuja Cement Foundation spearheads Water Management movement in rural Gujarat

Ahmedabad: Marking its Silver Jubilee year, Ambuja Cement Foundation (ACF) – the CSR arm of Ambuja Cements Ltd. – has through its pioneering initiatives successfully expanded its Water Resource Management Program outreach to over 200 villages in Gujarat, holistically addressing water crisis problems in terms of quality and quantity.

The once acutely water-stressed and salinity affected villages of five talukas – Sutrapada, Kodinar, Una, Veraval and Talala in GirSomnath district where the company was founded — have over the years witnessed broader and innovative water focused interventions that have created a significant impact on the environment, groundwater resources, salinity mitigation as well as agricultural and allied livelihood activities. The endeavours not only provided water for cultivation, rearing of animals, drinking and household activities but also substantial economic benefits.

Recalling ACF's journey in Gujarat, ACF Head Pearl Tiwarisaid, "Our goal has been to enable prosperity of communities. At the time when we began our journey from Gujarat, several parts in the state were reeling under a severe water crisis. From addressing the urgent need in a planned and co-ordinated manner through contemporary methods to taking a lead in defining water stewardship, ACF has come a long way. The ongoing water conservation movement led by our professional teams could not have been possible without the unwavering support by communities, like minded organisations and the Gujarat government." Environment Minister Urges State Governments to Initiate Necessary Action to Manage Air Pollution Union Minister of Environment, Forest and Climate Change, Dr. Harsh Vardhan has called upon State Governments of Delhi-NCR region, to initiate all necessary actions on a war footing for management of air pollution, so that the kind of episodic rise of air pollution seen last year is not repeated during the coming months. Addressing the meeting of the Chief Secretaries and senior officers of Delhi and NCR States regarding abatement of air pollution during the ensuing winter months, the Minister said that efficient management of air pollution is the duty of all concerned. He sought the participation of people in the matter and said that without it, desired results will be difficult to achieve. Dr. Harsh Vardhan stated that simple steps can go a long way in mitigating the levels of pollution such as prevention of biomass and crop burning, better management of crop residue, sprinkling water on dusty roads, dust mitigation at all construction and demolition sites, strict prevention of crop burning, closure of unauthorised brick kilns, installation of vapour recovery at fuel stations, avoidance of over-loaded vehicles and strict implementation of 'Pollution Under Check' certification. Dr. Harsh Vardhan said that we should ensure implementation of all long-term actions as directed by the Central Government in right earnest besides strict implementation of Graded Response Action Plan for various levels of pollution. He called upon the States to put up systems to ensure that action according to various levels of pollution are implemented with full involvement of stakeholders. The Minister added that the success will lie in ensuring that the emergency levels are not reached, as per the Graded Response Action Plan. Dr. Harsh Vardhan also called upon all the States to ensure that Control Rooms are set up in all the States and regular meetings of the Task Force are held for timely intervention. He also referred to the FIFA U-17 World Cup 2017 and Diwali and said that the Ministry has already initiated efforts for Clean Air by organising Harit Diwali – Swasth Diwali campaign with large number of students. He further said that requests have been made to all the Chief Secretaries to ensure that firecrackers which are not compliant to the laid down norms are not sold. He said that the Central Government shall keep a close watch on the progress during the next 4-5 months to ensure cleaner air during winter this year. Central Pollution Control Board (CPCB) Chairman said that CPCB had constituted 40 teams for the purpose of monitoring implementation of actions identified so that remedial measures can be initiated against defaulters. The meeting was attended by Minister of State of Environment, Forest and Climate Change, Dr. Mahesh Sharma, Chief Secretary of NCT of Delhi, Dr. M. M. Kuttty, Chairman, CPCB, Shri S.P.S Parihar, Additional Chief Secretary, Haryana government, Smt. Dheera Khandelwal, Additional Chief Secretary, Rajasthan government, Shri R.K Grover, Principal Secretary.

90% of home buyers are unaware of the impact of insolvency

With some top developers in the National Capital Region (NCR) filing for insolvency, a Magicbricks Consumer Choice Poll revealed that about 90% of investors are unaware of their rights and how they are impacted when their developer is declared insolvent.

Magicbricks, India's No.1 property site, conducted the poll (sample size of 900) to get insights into buyer understanding of insolvent developers. In the light of the Jaypee Infrastructure group being run by an Insolvency Resolution Professional at the behest of IDBI Bank, (presently stayed by the Supreme Court), Ms. E Jayashree Kurup, Head- Content and Advisory, suggests that "The effort with insolvency is to ensure that buyers get their homes and lenders get their money. Being the first such case in real estate, the status of different classes of creditors, including buyers, is being defined. Once this is done, buyers will benefit from insolvency as work is in progress and handover of completed projects is being expedited."

In the case of developers such as Jaypee, whose borrowing is backed by assets whose net worth is far more than the borrowed amount, this problem can be resolved when the handing over process begins in a phased manner and consumer receivables start flowing in regularly. (19-10)
