Celebrating Diwali with new ideas mportant festival of Hindus It is celebrated with great enthusiasm throughout the length and breadth of India. It is a festival of lights. Great perpetrations are made for this festival. Everyone starts making arrangement one month before Diwali, new cloths are purchased, houses are cleaned and decorated with lights, flowers etc. Diwali is celebrated by Hindus, Jains, and Sikhs and Newar Buddhists. It is to mark different historical events, but they all symbolise the victory of light over darkness, knowledge over ignorance, good over evil, hope over

People call and invite their nearest and dearest ones. Welldecorated houses add oomph to festivities. Though Diwali is definitely about lights, there are numerous other simple yet beautiful ways to celebrate it. It is the time when we clean every corner of our home to give it a fresh and bright festive look. Try putting up fancy decorations with diyas, candles, flower decoration, torans, string lights, rangoli, idols of Ganesha and Goddess Laxmi and they may change the look of the house. There are many ideas that can help you to enhance your house interior and exterior this festival. "Give your home a look completely different from the regular decor, but keep practicality in mind,' says Priya Nadeem, an interior designer. Here are a few easy, not-too-expensive ways to do up your home this Diwali, but feel free to add your own unique touch. Diwali being a festival of lights you can add a personal touch to your lighting; be different. Simple handmade
